

Educ P 1701

Educ P 140.13

HARVARD COLLEGE LIBRARY
JAN 10 1901

Inland Educator

and

Indiana School Journal

D. M. GEETING, } Editors
WALTER W. STORMS, }

Old Series Educator, Vol. XI, No. 6

Old Series Journal, Vol. XLVI, No. 1

CONTENTS

The Coronation of the Virgin—Botticelli.....	John L. Lowes.....	247
A Journey to the Bad Lands of North Dakota.....	D. Lange.....	250
History Teaching in the High Schools of Indiana.....	Frederic Austin Ogg.....	252
School Hygiene.....	W. H. Foreman.....	256
The School and Institutional Life.....	W. A. Millis.....	259
PRACTICAL PEDAGOGY.
What Practical Pedagogy Means—The Supervisor.....		262
BY THE WAY .....
A Crown of Castile Soap—Supervision by Pupils—The Scope of Work in Spelling—Casabianca and a Fellow by the Name of Rowan.....	Margaret E. Dennis.....	265
Wynken, Blynken and Nod.....		268
THE SCHOOL ROOM.
A Plea for Spelling, and a Suggestion.....	Alva O. Reser.....
Geography Work, IV.
" No Man Liveth to Himself".....	Lydia R. Blaich.....
First Grade Opening Exercises.....	Lulie Dietz.....	265
MATHEMATICS .....
Biography V—The Ending of the Century—Solutions—Credits—Solutions Requested—Some New Arithmetics.....	Robert J. Aley.....	274
EDITORIAL.
The Old Century and the New—Only a Child—Duty—Time for Courtesy—Laughing at a Child—Professional Titles—Achievement—Doing One's Best—The State School Levy—The Old Year—Election of County Superintendents—Isolation of the Schools.....		279
TOWNSHIP INSTITUTE.
Talks to Teachers.....	Francis M. Stalker.....	284
Talks on the Study of Literature.....	W. E. Henry.....	285
Side Lights on American History.....	J. M. Culver.....	286
Some Dangers to Adolescent Pupils.....	H. C. Thomas.....	288
Our Spectator.....		289
Is This Your Opportunity?.....		291
Singing in Schools.....		291
Educational, Literary and Personal Items.....		292
Business Notices.....		295
New Books.....		296

Published by

THE EDUCATOR-JOURNAL CO.

Indianapolis, Indiana

One Dollar a Year

Ten Cents a Copy
Digitized by Google

thoughts; and we'll send you ours. Does such a connection mean more love or more hate? Surely it is a tie that binds.

FIRST GRADE OPENING EXERCISES.

LULIE DIETZ.

Another day with its possibilities for good or evil confronts the teacher. Forty little individuals are to be brought into a harmonious whole. Forty active lives are to be lifted to a higher type of activity. How shall we, teacher and children together, reach this ideal?

No period of the day is more helpful in character-building than the time devoted to opening exercises. The importance of this early period of a new day can not be overestimated. Therefore the question: "What can I do to make this part of the program more vital to the child?" often confronts the conscientious teacher.

As an answer to this question all haphazard work in opening exercises must necessarily be abandoned. There must be as definite a plan for this period of the program as for any arithmetic or reading lesson. The effort in trying to make such plans that the children will receive a lasting impulse for good has been found very helpful by one teacher.

The following general plan has been used during the first four months of school:

Aim—To secure unity by encouraging a feeling of good fellowship and interest in one common thought.

To help the child in experiencing life lessons by presenting truths concretely and giving him an opportunity for free activity.

To cultivate a love for the beautiful through nature, literature and pictures.

There is no experience which is so close to the little six-year-old as his home life. The teacher who succeeds during his first year in bringing much of the home into the schoolroom has a favorable opportunity for starting the child on a hopeful school career.

During the first weeks, especially, much can be done in the way of making the school homelike. The children are encouraged to bring their little treasures. One corner of the room is set apart as "the little home" and furnished like a miniature house. Even the photographs of some of our baby friends and several of the timid children regain their power of speech when they discover the picture of one of their own baby playmates.

The morning talks cluster about mother and baby. "What baby can do;" "What mother does for us;" "What have I done for mother," are topics of never-failing interest.

In connection with these talks the beautiful stories about babies of the Bible may be told, and also simple, appropriate Bible quotations. The stories of mothers and babies may gradually lead up to the story of the Christ Child which increases in interest during the Christmas season when the children enjoy picturing the story at the sand table and in various other ways.

Following the same line of thought, George McDonald's poem, "The Baby," may be read. Tennyson's "The Bird and Its Nest," and the little poem, "Only One Mother the Wide World Over," may be used as memory gems.

Several of the family kindergarten songs may be used in this connection.

Simple devices assist in securing unity. The children are always delighted to form a large circle for the morning exercises. Something seems to be gained by simply "taking hold of hands." The little "good morning" games of the kindergarten have too much of the true spirit in them to be discarded in the primary room. The bright faces show how much they enjoy singing to their playmates as they bow to each other:

"Good morning to you,
Good morning to you,
Good morning, dear children,
Good morning to all."

A birthday among the little people is always a special occasion. The one who is celebrating is decorated with a bright flower or badge and stands in the center of the circle while the children sing "Happy birthday to you." This is such a great